3 Fleets Peril Truk, Borneo

By LEONARD MILLIMAN
Associated Press War Editor

Three widely separated fleet movements were reported by Tokyo radio today, involving a threatened third invasion of Borneo, the first naval bombardment of the by-passed Truk island fortress, and "suddenly increased" activity in Okinawa waters.

The three unconfirmed actions were about 2500 miles apart at points of a triangle reaching up to Japan's home waters, deep into the Dutch East Indies and well into the Pacific.

More than 20 warships, including a carrier and three battleships, were said to be nearing Balikpapan, Borneo's major oil refinery center. The report coincided with Allied announcement Australian troops had seized all initial objectives of their second invasion, begun Sunday, with the capure of their third airfield on Brunei bay.

A great increase in American naval forces around Okinawa, Tokyo said, "may point to an enemy scheme to launch operations against the Japanese homeland."

With fewer than 10,000 mostly second-rate Jap troops left on Okinawa, the "final phase" of the ground campaign on this naval and air base island will be over in less than a week, said Lt. Gen. Simon Boliver Buckner, Jr., whose 10th Army troops narrowed the Jap hold to eight square miles.

Naval bombardment of Truk, Tokyo said, was carried out yesterday by two cruisers and four destroyers in conjunction with a carrier attack which has reached its third successive day. The Japs offered no explanation for the attack, presumably by British forces, on the once mighty Nipponese base in the Caroline islands.

Tokyo also reported more than 25 Superforts made four mine-laying expeditions into Japanese waters early today. Mines are taking an unknown toll of the Mikado's shipping in addition to the daily announced bags of air raiders. Today's reports listed 11 coastal vessels and schooners sunk and six wrecked on the ways—mostly at Shanghai.

While hundreds of American warships, loaded cargo vessels and landing craft are pouring into Okinawa waters, Tokyo said, U. S. naval patrols have been extended to within 200 miles of Japan.

To meet this threat the Japs were reported converting their nearest island, Kyushu, "into one large fortress x x x at amazing speed."

Naval guns strongly supported three Yank divisions which have badly bent the enemy's suicide line on Okinawa.

Ninety-sixth Division infantrymen drove deeper into the northern front behind tanks and flamethrowers and covered by their own guns mounted on Yaeju hill, which the Yanks have renamed "The Big Apple." One force of the 96th assaulted twin-peaked Yuza hill from which the Japs directed heavy fire into the flank of the first Marines at the end of the line.

On the eastern end, the Seventh Infantry cut 100 to 700 yards through strong points, including caves and coral undercroppings reinforced with steel and concrete.

After months of tortuous campaigning through Philippine mountains, the U. S. 37th Infantry broke into the broad plains of Cagayan valley in a 22-mile advance in 24 hours. Two towns were liberated in the valley where the climactic battles of Luzon island are expected. All other Yank divisions in the Philippines made small advances.

Eisenhower Hops for Home

PARIS, June 16 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower took off today for the United States, where a hero's acclaim awaits him in Washington, New York, and his Kansas home town, Abilene.

Eisenrower planned to stop off in Bermuda for several hours' rest. He is due in Washington Monday and New York Tuesday.

50 WACs to Get Out of Army Monthly

PARIS, June 16 (AP)—No fewer than 50 WACs will be returned to the United States monthly on a basis of service points, Lt. Col. Anna W. Wilson, WAC staff director for this theater, said today. This will begin July 1, with 70 points required for the first group to be redeployed. Each month thereafter a theater WAC score will be announced.

"I believe most of them are to be returned to civilian life," Col. Wilson said, "but that matter is handled by the War Department."

Vatican Denies U. S. Prelate to Get Post

ROME, June 16 (INS)—Authoritative quarters in the Vatican today emphatically denied French reports a high-ranking American prelate is likely to be appointed to succeed the late Cardinal Maglione as cardinal secretary of state.

Sec. Forrestal, Nimitz, Halsey For Peace Draft

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Peacetime military training as a preparation "to fight any international ruffian who attempts to impose his will on the world by force" was advocated today by Sec'y Forrestal.

Saying those in favor of a peacetime draft "frequently are asked whom we are preparing to fight," Forrestal declared. The answer is "Any frustrated paperhanger anywhere who may be dreaming of world dominion."

The Secretary's testimony came after Chairman Woodrum (D.) of Virginia read letters from Fleet Adm. Nimitz and Adm. Halsey recommending enactment of the training program.

"If there is any possible way of avoiding a repetition of what we have been through for the last four years, that way should be found," Sec. Forrestal said, in a statement prepared for delivery before the committee.

Forrestal asked the committee if "we in conscience" can discard "such expert testimony and go back to the comfortable inertia and blind complacency which for 20 years virtually extended an invitation to Mussolini, Hitler and the Japanese war lords to run the world if they chose to?"

To do so, he added, is to "scarcely deserve to survive as a nation."

Until the plan is tried, he said, arguments pro and con will remain unsolved, and the only way to find the answer "is to try it." Congress, he pointed out, may repeal the legislation at any time.

Forrestall said a poll of servicemen "would be preponderantly in favor of universal military training" because these men do not want war again "and they do not want it for their children."

Abp. Spellman To Get Papal Post

VATICAN CITY, June 16 (AP)—Vatican City circles said today there was a possibility Archbishop Francis J. Spellman of New York would be appointed Papal secretary of state, but that conjecture on that subject must be considered "premature and without foundation."

It was stressed the appointment depends entirely upon Pope Pius XII. It would be subject to the formality of approval by the College of Cardinals at a consistory and this, which would be the first under the present pontiff, is not expected to take place before Christmas owing to difficulty of communications which would prevent many cardinals from attending.

The secretaryship has been vacant since the death Aug. 22 of Luigi Cardinal Maglione, who served more than five years.

Hint Ribbentrop To Talk for Life

By KINGSBURY SMITH

PARIS, June 16 (INS)—Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's arrogant foreign minister, was being grilled at a secret interrogation center today by relays of American and British investigators.

The place where Allied Supreme Headquarters' No. 1 prisoner is being questioned was known to only a few high officials.

There were indications that Von Ribbentrop, one of the most hateful and supercilious of the war-like leaders of Nazidom was now putting on the "meek act" and pretending he never wanted war with Britain.

There were further indications that he was willing to barter the secrets of Nazidom in exchange for his life.

An International News Service correspondent in Lueneberg reported that Von Ribbentrop was living in a cozy 5-room apartment on the top level of a 5-floor apartment building when he was arrested Friday.

He was the guest of a divorced brunette woman in her middle thirties who answered the door in her dressing gown when British officers, acting on the tip of an unidentified German, went to arrest him.

The woman, whose name is being withheld, claimed she did not know who Von Ribbentrop was. She said he occupied one room and spent most of his time listening to London broadcasts on his radio.

Arresting officers said that after some evasiveness, Von Ribbentrop admitted his identity and claimed he had planned to surrender in two more days.

Interest centered in the three letters found on Ribbentrop at the time of his arrest.

They were addressed to Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden and Field Marshal Montgomery.

"I expect they contain an offer to tell all Nazi secrets as long as his life is spared," one high staff officer reported.

Army of Occupation Also Runs a Circus

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—Lt. Colin Johnson, 25, British artilleryman, has one of the strangest jobs in the Army of Occupation. He is in charge of a three-ring circus, a bomb-dazed outfit of artists and animals captured by Field Marshal Montgomery's troops.

He volunteered for the task a month ago and now has the circus ready to open business solely for Allied troops under a big top which rises from the ruins of Hamburg, one-time circus capital of continental Europe.

To get the show in operation after an RAF strafing plane mistook it for an enemy convoy, Colin had to use all his knowledge of the circus business.

This was gained from carrying a pail of water to an elephant when a circus put up in his home town of Nottingham, England, 10 years ago.

Among the things he has had to dig up are 1000 electric light bulbs, a tent which will accommodate 3000 troops, 30 pounds of meat a day for the sole lion, food for 50 horses, two elephants, one monkey, a dozen sheep and goats and 30 men and women artists.

The big top was about the only thing left of the internationally famous Hagenbeck circus. This was promptly requisitioned.

Then Colin found horse meat unfit for human consumption. He is rationing it out to Bruno, the mangy lion.

Colin is worried about Suzan, a sorrowful-eyed monkey that won't eat but just sits and stares since her mate was killed.

German rations are being given the performers. They get more than the average civilian because they are in the same classification as miners.

OPA—The Black Market—and YOU

Bungling Brings Hub Meat Famine

By WARREN STEVENS

When actual meat famine first faced Boston's consumers less than three months ago, the bureaucrats evolved a bright, new idea which served only to make matters worse.

Like previous ideas for halting shortages, it looked brilliant on paper, but fizzled so completely that it helped to increase instead of bringing a halt to the threatened scarcity.

The whole idea was based on the slaughtering of livestock in the state, which is a vital factor in the problem of supplying the Boston area.

Large shipments of western dressed meat are received here but in addition a huge amount of livestock is brought in to be slaughtered to increase the supplies to retailers.

Some of these slaughtering plants are government-inspected, others are not. Those which the government inspects may ship meat anywhere but the non-inspected plants are permitted to dispose of their produce only within the state.

Naturally, much of the non-inspected meat slaughtered in this area was channeled into the Boston market, the heaviest meat consuming area in the state.

Faced with a actual famine as far as the great majority of Boston's million consumers were concerned, the bureaucrats evolved a new directive which became effective April 30.

Under its terms slaughterers whose plants were not federally inspected were limited for the next two months to a percentage of the amount of livestock they had slaughtered in May and June of 1944.

The slaughterers were permitted to kill the same amount of sheep and lambs during May and June as they had done in those months last year.

But they were cut to 75 per cent of the amount of cattle and calves killed in those months of 1944 and 50 per cent of the amount of hogs slaughtered in that period.

OPA announcement of the directive described it as part of a 10-point four-agency program announced by the Office of Economic Stabilization to "assist in bringing about a better distribution of meat."

Named as co-operating with the Economic Stabilization Office were the OPA, the War Food Administration and the War Department.

The "better distribution of meat," it was explained, would be accomplished by limitation on the production of slaughterers of non-federally inspected meat, thus permitting the flow of more live animals into federally inspected plants.

Federally inspected meat is the only type which the armed services purchase.

"By diverting more live animals into federally inspected plants," the OPA announcement declared, "the volume for Army purchase and for shipment to cities far from major producing areas is expected to increase."

Even the most meat-starved consumer has no objection to allowing the armed services to get first crack at the supply. In fact the great majority is glad to go without meat occasionally when they know they are making the sacrifice so that the servicemen can be assured of regular supplies.

But no one in Boston can understand how the robbing Peter to pay Paul policy of diverting supplies of livestock for the Bos-

GIRLS ABOARD ARMY TUG GREET SOLDIERS DOWN THE HARBOR
Welcome Home Given to Men Aboard Transport Wakefield Today

5083 More Vets Arrive, 200 From New England

With Old Glory hoisted high and whipping proudly in the harbor breeze, the huge Coast Guard-manned transport Wakefield came home again today with 5083 more of the men who shot the props from under the Axis credo that democracy was an unendurable weakness of mankind.

Of these jubilant home-comers who had laid Nazism and Fascism in blistering ruins, 200 were New Englanders, 48 of them prisoners liberated from German camps.

It was a resounding welcome that greeted them. As the big ship came in past Graves Light, its four open decks massed with soldiers, a welcoming tug met it. The band aboard struck up with, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

A roar of appreciation came from the returning soldiers. The tug maneuvered so those on the transport could read a large placard which told them, "Welcome Home, Well Done."

There were WACs aboard the tug. There also were girls employed at the Army base. Using an amplifier, one of the WACs sang "The Yodling Song." It brought thunderous applause from the transport and as it died away the soldiers began shouting, "Bring that tug closer." It became a chant. These were the first American girls many of the men had seen in long months and the khaki hosts wanted a closeup.

There were misty eyes on the tug—and perhaps on the transport as well—but for one woman on the tug the joy of the home-coming was diluted. Mrs. Mary Searle of Fenwood rd., Back Bay, knew her husband, Lt. Frank Searle, was not aboard the big ship.

He was reported killed May 13 when his plane crashed in the Philippines area. His wife said:

"I wanted to see these boys come home just the same. I still have hope, because Frank is the kind of a guy nothing bad ever happens to."

The little tug led the towering Wakefield into Commonwealth Pier like a self-important duck disdainful of all that floated in the harbor.

Here the welcome was stepped up. The 48 liberated prisoners were first to disembark. The able-bodied came down one gangplank to find the pier colorfully bedecked, with the welcome sign hung out all over the place.

Each man was greeted by a pretty WAC and the Army's ability to grade pulchritude was so well demonstrated that some of the soldiers lingered for as much welcome as they could get.

As the men continued on they walked over a large rubber mat on which there was a map of the United States and the word, "Home." Flags of the United Nations enlivened the pier's ordinarily gray aspects. The seal of each state in the Union was there for the eyes of any boy who wanted a sign of something from "back home."

One of the arrivals probably knew more about prison camps than any of his fellows. Pvt. John Putnam, Chatham rd., Orleans, had been in 13 of them in two years, one month and 17 days. He was captured in North Africa, imprisoned by the Germans there and subsequently lived in stockades of one kind or another in Italy, Sicily, Austria and Germany.

"They were all bad," he related. "They were all rugged. We nearly

Women Wire Truman

Boston Group Says Meat Famine Peril to Health

Protesting that the current meat famine in Boston is endangering the health of war workers and children who need proteins in their diet, the Women's Committee for United Action, wired an appeal to President Truman today to declare this an emergency area and rush meat shipments to Boston. In a night letter they said:

My Dear Mr. President: The meat situation for the common people who can not eat in restaurants, hotels and night clubs, is tensely critical. The stores of Massachusetts, particularly Boston are bare of fresh meats, poultry and eggs.

For weeks, hundreds of thousands of war workers, in this vital war production area, upon whose efficiency and health the production of war supplies for our fighting men depends, have been deprived of these energy and health-building proteins.

Little children are going hungry. They can't live on leaf greens, root vegetables and promises alone.

At a meeting of the Women's Committee for United Action with the OPA, Thursday, June 14, Mr. Lake, head of New England meat section, admitted publicly before the press, and before Mr. Eldon Shoup, OPA regional head, that OPA has no figures on how much meat is coming into New England each week and therefore has no check on the huge amounts of meats the packers are siphoning off from regular market supplies to restaurants and hotels.

This is dangerous predicament for any segment of America to be in, Mr. President. It is high time something was done about inefficient management in Washington. It's high time the bunglers and the incompetents were eliminated from all government agencies and with dispatch.

Mr. President, things are critical in this section. War workers and homemakers are becoming belligerently resentful. We therefore most respectfully ask you to declare Boston an emergency area and to personally cut through all red tape and agency rumbling and start "emergency shipments" of meats to Boston immediately, for exclusive distribution to the retail trade.

You might as well know it, Mr. President, the entire nation is waiting and looking to you in confidence and hope to restore economic order in America. And we women, especially, want you to know that we are behind you 100 per cent, for unity and economic stability.

May we have a yes or no answer from you immediately, Mr. President, as the matter is urgent.

The telegram was signed by Mrs. Marion M. Wilkins, executive chairman of the Women's Committee for United Action.

OPA to Set County Meat Quotas

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—The OPA has issued an order regarding meat distribution which should "improve the situation in deficit areas such as Massachusetts," War Food Administrator Marvin Jones told Sen. Saltonstall (R.) of Massachusetts today.

The order, Jones said in a letter, requires all meat processors to distribute their sales by counties in proportion to the amount marketed in those counties in the spring of 44.

Saltonstall wrote to Jones and Price Administrator Bowles after receiving numerous complaints about the meat shortage from Massachusetts cities and towns.

New Stalin Move May Prolong 'Frisco Parley

By WILLIAM THEIS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 16 (INS)—A fresh balk from Moscow and dogged resistance of the small powers to Big Five speedup pressure today threatened to upset the United Nations Conference schedule for adjournment one week from tonight.

The retarding action came as a tentative itinerary for President Truman's appearance at the closing plenary session—expected June 23—was announced in San Francisco and Washington.

Discussions were opened at once among the Big Five in an effort to compromise Russia's 11th-hour demand for reopening the question of the general assembly's right to discuss any matter affecting "international relations."

That matter already had been approved by a conference committee and considered closed. But Soviet Ambassador Gromyko, at a meeting of the four conference presidents, said his government had decided such broad authority in the "town meeting" body of the new world organization would lead to "academic" debate unrelated to security. Moscow, he said, wished the whole question reconsidered.

Almost immediately one compromise proposal was produced with apparent favorable reaction. John Foster Dulles, adviser to the American delegation, suggested the general assembly might be tied in with the organization's purposes and principles.

This would mean the assembly might discuss anything in the sphere of international relations which is covered by the world's charter's statement of purposes and principles.

Britain Again Snubs French On Syria Plan

By Associated Press

Britain formally has declined France's proposal for a five-power conference on Middle East problems, authoritative quarters in Paris said today, and is understood to have reiterated her preference for a three-power meeting of France, Britain and the United States.

Gen. De Gaulle was reported in official quarters to have cancelled all engagements after June 18 with the hope of flying to Washington, as soon as President Truman's schedule permits, to discuss French problems.

Truman Travels 16,500 Miles in Next 30 Days

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—President Truman plans to travel approximately 16,500 miles within the next 30 to 40 days.

Here's how he will build up that mileage:

From Washington to Olympia, Wash., then to San Francisco and back to Washington; then to Kansas City and Independence, Mo., and back to Washington; then across the Atlantic to meet Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill in the vicinity of Berlin.

The White House disclosed yesterday that Mr. Truman plans to address the closing session of the United Nations Conference at San Francisco Saturday, June 23. Earlier, presidential press secretary Charles G. Ross announced the Big Three meeting will be held near the German capital at a date yet to be disclosed.

Ross said the President will fly to Olympia Tuesday or Wednesday, as guest of Gov. Mon C. Wallgren, in the Senate with Mr. Truman.

From Olympia Mr. Truman will fly to San Francisco.

After returning to Washington, probably June 24, the President will make another flying trip to Kansas City June 27 to attend home coming celebrations at nearby Independence that afternoon and at Kansas City the next day.

Truck Drivers Defy U. S., Strike

CHICAGO, June 16 (INS)—Chicago truck drivers, after a 6 to 1 vote, struck today in defiance of Army troops as the Office of Defense Transportation seized 1700 trucking firms in an effort to prevent a complete tieup of truck transport in the Midwest.

The drivers walked out as a detachment of 600 Military Police from Camp Skokie, Ill., moved into a temporary Army camp just south of the Loop. One thousand infantrymen from Ft. Custer, Mich., were camped at Northerly island on the short of Lake Michigan.

William G. Crawford, attorney for the Cartage Exchange of Chicago, announced 6000 of the city's 15,000 truck drivers were out.

In a referendum taken by NLRB, the two unions agreed to strike in protest against refusal of the War Labor Board to reconsider their wage and hour demands.

VFW Auxiliary Tops Bond Quota

The Massachusetts Department auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, has sold $299,519 worth of war bonds in the Seventh War Loan, bringing the auxiliary's total sales in the last three war loans to $1,158,067, Miss Ruby B. Litchfield, director of the women's division of the state war finance committee, announced today.

The auxiliary's quota in this drive was $110,000. Treasury Department citations will be presented to three of the auxiliary's saleswomen at a two-day service conference in Faneuil Hall, June 23 and 24. The members to be honored are Mrs. Mary Magoun of Chelsea, Mrs. Mollie Lackey of Dorchester and Mrs. Minnie Wiseman of Revere. The auxiliary's sales were directed by Mrs. Frank J. Benoit of Somerville.

Bond sales in Dorchester, Mattapan and Roxbury will be stimulated tomorrow at an outdoor rally in Franklin Park at 2 p. m. Sponsored by the M. & P. theaters of the three sections, the rally will include entertainment by Boston night club and radio stars, music by the Port of Embarkation Band, and addresses by government officials.

Carpet Output To Be Increased

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP)—Expansion of civilian carpeting manufacture may be expected in the fourth quarter of this year and perhaps late in the July-September quarter, in the opinion of some War Production Board officials.

Carpeting producers are heavily loaded with war assignments different from their peacetime output—wool blankets, cotton duck, drill and twill fabrics, ropes and cordage.

Officials reported a fairly generous supply of carpet wool now is available both in this country and abroad, and disclosed the Army has cut its demands for woolen blankets in the approaching quarter.

Child Attacker Auto Chief Clue

Gas stations within a 50-mile radius were being checked today by Cohasset and State Police in hope of identifying a motorist, garbed in Navy uniform, who kidnaped and attacked Carol Vickery, 7, of Cohasset, and then abandoned her a half-mile from her home.

MRS. KATH. BURKE, SON PAUL
Seek Carson Beach Breezes

They were hopeful of obtaining evidence of a sale of gasoline to a sailor driving a Rhode Island registered coupe, which would help them to identify the little girl's attacker. Military and Naval authorities have joined the search.

The assault, coming on the first anniversary of the unsolved Frances McGrath's case, took place in a heavily wooded section near the Hingham Ammunition Depot less than four miles from the lonely lane in Norwell where the McGrath girl's body was found a year ago today.

According to Police Chief Hector Pelletier of Cohasset, the Vickery girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Vickery, of North Main st., Cohasset, was playing on a swing in her yard, when the sailor-clad motorist, driving a Rhode Island registered coupe, drove by.

Pulling into a driveway near the child's home, the driver asked her to ride to the beach and when she refused told her "it's all right, I know your mother and father."

Instead of going to the beach, the girl reported, he drove her five miles away to Beachwood st., where she screamed and fought with him. Carol told police he put his hand over her mouth when she screamed, then drove her back to within a half mile of her home, and abandoned her.

Shortly after the little girl's mother reported the crime to police, state detectives picked up a 17-year-old Rhode Island youth for questioning, but later released him. They said the youth drove an auto answering to the description of the kidnap car.

East Wind Keeps Temperature at Ideal Hub Level

Climbing about three degrees an hour, the mercury today headed toward the low 80's to give Boston a preview of perfect summer weather marred only by partial cloudiness and a forecast of scattered showers.

Boston's famed east wind blew up to keep the temperature within bounds. At 1 p. m. the mercury reached 83, far below Friday's record-breaking 96.4.

In the interior suburbs, however, readings in the 90's were expected.

Sunday will be a "re-run" of today, the weatherman said, with scattered showers and little change in temperatures.

4 in P. R. R. Wreck Still Unidentified

MILTON, Pa., June 16 (AP)—Pennsylvania railroad officials continued their search today for clues to the identities of four of the 18 persons killed yesterday in a freak collision here between a Washington-to-Buffalo express and a freight train.

Among the three women and one serviceman still unidentified are a woman with a wedding ring engraved "FEC to ARF, 10-20-41" and a soldier whose clothing bore only a laundry mark, a railroad spokesman said.

Bebe, Ben Return From London War

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, June 16—Two happy faces were pressed against the window of a C-54 bomber as it circled the Long Beach Army Air Base and nosed earthward.

The clever lad, carrying on the tradition of his parents as a featured player in pictures, had told me he was going to formally salute his daddy, U. S. Air Forces Lt. Col. Ben Lyon. But sight of his parents made him forget all his military school training.

Crushing the laughing and crying youth in his arms, Col. Lyon announced, "This is the first time I've ever hugged a sergeant!"

Bebe, lovely and young looking as she was when she was one of Adolph Zukor's greatest money-making stars, hugged her children, Richard and Barbara, a sophomore at Immaculate Heart High School.

It was the first time she had seen them in four years.

Bebe pointed to her European theater ribbon with two stars which she wore with great pride and dignity. It had been awarded her when she was the first woman to land in Italy and France after the Allied invasions, to entertain our troops.

In London throughout the worst days of the Nazi blitz, Ben and Bebe broadcast daily to the troops in the field and helped keep up the morale of the Britishers.

Ben expects to be sent to Guam and Manila following his 21-day leave here, where he will set up radio departments for the 8th and 15th Army air forces.

When I asked Bebe about her plans she said, "I don't know, but am certain that never again will I ever allow anyone or anything to separate me from my children."

Bebe and Ben have received some very fine bids from British broadcasting companies and several English producers, but they said these will have to wait until after the war.

Dog Hero

MOSCOW, Idaho, June 16 (AP)—Charles Corey, 22, today credited his mongrel dog, Ladd, with speeding his extrication when he was pinned under a tractor bulldozer.

Corey, recovering from a compound fracture of a thigh bone, wrote a message on a gasoline receipt, tied it to the dog's neck.

Ladd took it to the house a half mile away and Corey's father, Dwight Corey, found it and summoned aid.

British 2d Army Gets Ready to Move

WIESBADEN, Germany, June 16 (AP)—It was learned authoritatively today Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's British Second Army, which fought from Normandy to Hamburg, will wind up its European operations within a few days and be deployed for duty elsewhere.

Canadian forces now in the European theater, except for one composite group to be known as the Third Canadian Infantry Division, will be withdrawn from the continent by July 1.

THIS HAS been a big week for Barbara Whitmore. She won a speech contest, a screen test, a role in a motion picture and a guest spot on a radio program, and to top it all off her husband, Lt. Edwin L. Vincent, whom she is greeting with a big kiss, arrived in New York after being liberated from a German prison camp.

Yugo Women, Young Soldiers in 1st Vote

MOSCOW, June 16 (AP)—A dispatch to Red Star said today general elections had been ordered for Yugoslavia with women voting for the first time and all soldiers, regardless of age, casting ballots. This will include many teen-age Partisans.

It was also announced the war had cost Yugoslavia 1,700,000 of its pre-war population of 15,000,000.

First Airliner At Presque Isle With N. E. Vets

By DON MacPHAIL

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., June 16—Carrying 23 veterans of African and European battlefields, an Air Transport Command C-47 plane glided to a landing at the local base today, the first arrival in the greatest air troop movement in history which will return by air approximately 50,000 American soldiers a month to home soil.

Most of the 23 high-score veterans were New Englanders and six were Massachusetts residents.

Their plane was one of a flight of five transports which took off from Paris yesterday morning and stopped at the Azores and Newfoundland before reaching here. Two others were expected here later today. Others were headed for LaGuardia Field, New York.

Reaching Newfoundland at the peak of a howling storm, the transport planes were held for three hours at the Stephenville base before being given ATC clearance to continue their journey.

"We were lucky to get through the storm," said Capt. David Klingenberger of Chicago. "We were bobbing around like a cork in a bathtub."

"But what a way to come home!" chimed in S-Sgt. Edward J. Nelson, 29, of Palfrey st., Watertown. "Imagine flying from Paris to the United States in 19 hours. That's better than wasting seven days coming over on a cattle boat."

All returning veterans were lavish in their praise of the ATC fliers who brought them safely through the storm. Another reassuring sight for them on their flight across the Atlantic was a veritable line of Navy and Coast Guard vessels.

"It seemed as though there was a ship every 15 or 20 miles all along the way," said S. Sgt. John R. Sonia, 27, of Amero st., Gloucester.

Each of the returning veterans had at least one decoration for gallantry or meritorious service and more than enough points for discharges. And discharges were uppermost in their minds.

"It's now or never for me," declared S-Sgt. Constantino A. Matulis, 26, of Paterson st., Worcester, who served in eight campaigns from Africa to the Rhine.

"I've had my fill of fighting. My first day in battle was Nov. 8, 1942, but the toughest of them all was the Remagen bridgehead.

"The Heinies threw everything but the kitchen sink at us and we threw back everything, including the kitchen sink. That was the one that cooked Hitler's goose. It was the toughest of the war."

One of the happiest returning veterans was PFC R. Sanderson Sprague, 36, of Ft. Fairfield, Me., who had been overseas 35 months and wears the Bronze Star.

Grabbing the nearest telephone, he called his home 12 miles away and talked to his wife for the first time in almost three years. She told him to stay right where he was and she and daughter Katherine, 14, would be right over.

He and the others will remain here until Monday, or until other arrivals bring the group to 200. Units of 200 will be transported by train to Camp Myles Standish in Massachusetts for processing before being given furloughs.

Other Massachusetts men among the first arrivals were S-Sgt. John V. Moretto, 27, Norfolk st., Worcester; T-Sgt. Sidney S. Damb, 24, Hebron st., Springfield, and Cpl. Eldridge J. Dodge, 27, Maple st., Attleboro.

Also returning were S-Sgt. Charles W. Webster, 24, West Campton, N. H.; PFC Arthur T. MacDonald, 27, Portsmouth, N. H.; S-Sgt. Edward J. Caporassi, New Haven, Ct.; S-Sgt. Alec Krywicky, 25, Auburn, Me.; TS Guermio C. Santoro, 28, Riverside, Ct., and S-Sgt. Joseph G. Chaloo, 24, Manchester, N. H.

S-Sgt. Willis E. Truman, 25, Cort, N. Y.; PFC Andrew S. Scammiter, 26, Downs, Pa.; Cpl. George P. Capuk, 35, Syracuse, N. Y.; S-Sgt. Kenneth K. Woods, 26, Johnsbury, Vt.; TS Lawrence A. Rathford, 25, Pawtucket, R. I., and PFC James M. Grassie, 21, Chicago.

TS Salvatore Florio, 24, Hartford, Ct.; Sgt. Ernest G. Mika, 27, Shelton, Ct.; PFC Joseph W. Murray, 27, Cannan, N. H., and PFC Philip D. Archambeault, 23, Granby, Ct.

ton market into federally inspected plants to be killed and shipped out of the state could ever hope to solve the acute consumer meat famine in this area.

As if that were not bad enough, the slaughterers whose output has been cut by the quota limitations could keep going at top speed if the bureaucrats would let them.

One Worcester slaughtering firm received a carload of cattle from Chicago last May 26 and asked the OPA for permmission to slaughter the livestock.

The application was denied on the ground the firm had exhausted its May quota.

The result was that the firm had to close its doors and board the cattle on a nearby farm at a cost of more than $100 until it was able to slaughter the animals under is June quota.

That was Memorial Day week when every Boston retail meat counter was empty!

Another Worcester slaughterer has appealed to Massachusetts Senators and Congressmen to challenge the legality of the order which prevents them from providing sufficient supplies for the State's markets while live animals are available in abundance.

The protests cite Department of Agriculture figures to show there is more cattle on the range in the United States than ever before in the nation's history.

In effect for a month and one-half, the net result of the order has been to cut deeply into the retail supply of the Boston market and faster unsanitary "bootleg" slaughtering and a modernized outbreak of the old-time cattle rustling of the Western plains.

Many retail outlets had been depending heavily on these local slaughterers to replenish meat supplies which had been cut into deeply by the channeling of mid-western shipments of dressed meats to the hotel and restaurant trade.

Hi-jacking and rustling of cattle has been reported not only in Massachusetts but in New York state.

Only the other day in New Hampshire, Col. Ralph W. Caswell, head of the state police, warned farmers of the modernized version of the western rustler and urged owners of dairy herds, particularly in isolated sections, to protect their cows.

In Massachusetts there has been considerable evidence of "bootleg" slaughtering.

Dairy herds have been the particular object of the cattle thieves, who roam the countryside and back roads, steal the animals and butcher them in the nearest isolated spot, getting rid of the meat as quickly as possible.

As a result of this catch-as-catch-can butchering, there is a strong possibility that infected meat will be finding its way to consumers, either from "black market" outlets or from dealers willing to take a chance on the illegally slaughtered meat so that they can supply old and steady customers.

Massachusetts was a pioneer among the states in health department animal inspection and its health laws controlling slaughtering have always been considered models for other states.

As a result the bootleg slaughtering and its possibility of infected meat coming into circulation have resulted in a strain in relations between the State Health Department and the OPA.

In fact, the department is no longer furnishing the OPA with its slaughterhouse reports.

'Iron Man' Lee Now Air Colonel

Lt. Col. George R. Lee, 25, known as the "Iron Man" in the Army Air Force, has received his full commission as colonel, according to word received by his mother, Mrs. Mary Lee of Norwood.

The famed Norwood ace has been commander of a squadron recently renamed the "Lee Lieutenants." Joining the Air Corps as a cadet the day after Pearl Harbor, he has flown 262 missions, more than any flier in the AAF. He was commissioned major when 24 and wears the British DFC, the American DFC, and Air Medal with 13 Oak Leaf clusters. With his new commission he has received the Silver Star.

First V-Garden Harvest Nears

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head, Vegetable Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School, and Director of the Boston Record-American-Sunday Advertiser demonstration garden on the Common.

The wonders that a few days of good weather can perform for Victory gardeners is now noticeable. There has been a tremendous increase in the growth of garden crops this week, with early crops about ready to harvest.

If crops were planted according to our suggested schedule, you should now be enjoying your first harvest. Our demonstration garden on the Common is now producing excellent spinach, lettuce, beet-greens and radishes.

There is still time to plant most crops and the need is greater than any season to date. Bad weather, labor problems, transportation difficulties, gradual depletion of stored goods and increased demands by our armed forces are causing a severe crisis in the food situation. The only chance to relieve this situation is through the co-operation of home gardeners.

Keep planting: Grow your own and be sure.

Improved weather means more work and more attention must be given to the garden. The job you do now will determine the results you get later. Crops must be weeded and thinned on time. Cultivation must continue.

Butter Increase Spreads Very Thin

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP) —Slightly more butter will be available for the nation's dinner table during the next three months. Divided equally on a per capita basis the increase will be scarcely noticeable.

The War Food Administration allotted 7,000,000 more pounds for civilian use than the April-June estimated consumption.

Transport

starved." He lost 40 pounds which the Army has restored to him via steaks, milk, eggs and other body builders.

There were litter cases, as inevitably there always are. One gangplank was reserved for them. At the bottom of it was a figure who drew grins of appreciation from the men being carried. It was an Uncle Sam, replete with the costume that is one of America's best-loved symbols.

"Sam," said one carried soldier, "you look awful good to me."

"Brother," said Sam, "you look even better to me." Sgt. Richard Kaufman, an actor before he went into the Army, played the role.

The happiness of a pier reunion with his father and mother came to Lt. John G. Sundborg of Baldwin st., Newton, former Newton High School football star. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Sundborg, had been at the pier to meet each transport, hoping each would bring home their flier son.

The Wakefield rewarded them. Sundborg, one of the liberated prisoners, spotted his folks and won permission to have a moment with them at the gate. Everyone within eyesight of the hugging agreed it was vigorous.

The wounded, as they have done from each transport, impressed civilians with their resolution and spirit. One soldier, a young one, with both legs gone, saw newspapermen and women coming as he sat in the hospital train.

He let out a yell and shouted, "And there I was, hanging in mid-air, Mom, suspended in space at 20,000 feet. What an experiment! What an experiment!"

For one man, nevertheless, the horrors of German captivity were still vivid. Cpl. Willis H. Allard, 23, Moody st., Lowell, one of the hospital train passengers, said:

"Somehow, to forget, that's all."

Allard wanted to forget a week spent in a box car with 53 other Americans. There was little air and it was pitch-black. The Germans wouldn't even give them water. Two men died. Some became insane.

"I told the Germans I'd rather have them put a bullet through my head than beg them for water," he related. "They laughed and said, 'Americans are crazy.'"

Men were still coming off the Wakefield, some shouting with joy, others quiet. "Oh, well," said Allard, "we're home again and that's something."

The big transport arrived here last with returned soldiers May 25.

"That's ferryin'," observed one pier worker. No one said him nay.

Court-Martial Review Is Sought

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—Rep. Celler (D.) of New York said today he believed a commission should be set up to review court-martial sentences in the European theater and moderate overly severe ones.

Disclosing he had sought clemency for two soldiers sentenced to death, Celler said many sentences imposed under war conditions would appear "Draconian" in retrospect.

Celler said he had asked President Truman and military authorities to moderate a death sentence imposed May 11 on Pvt. Samuel Rosenblum, 23, a Purple Heart winner convicted of disobeying his captain's command.

Da's na fijn, zunne!...Have a Coca-Cola
(SAY, THAT'S GREAT!)

...an American custom lands in Brussels

In Flemish, it's vriendelijkheid. In American, it's the plain, everyday word friendliness. Everywhere your Yankee doughboy goes, it comes from his heart in a good old home-town phrase, Have a Coke. Friendliness is bred in his bone and it bubbles out—like the bubbling goodness of Coca-Cola itself. Yes, the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coke becomes an ambassador of good will...the old home spirit carried across the seas.

Coca-Cola
·the global high-sign

You naturally hear Coca-Cola called by its friendly abbreviation "Coke". Both mean the quality product of The Coca-Cola Company.

WEARING an effective robe de style of ivory faille with a spray of wine peonies appliqued on the front of the skirt, and carrying ivory peonies tied with wine streamers, Jacqueline Laneres is making her formal debut this evening at a dance at the Cambridge Boat Club. The affair, which is preceded by an ushers' dinner at the Harvard Club, is given by the debutante's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pierre A. Laneres of Brookline.

The clubhouse is transformed by flowers and greens into a gay outdoor garden setting and the tables are covered with yellow appliqued in green. Receiving with the debutante are her mother in black lace with white orchids, and her post deb sister Yvette, in a lovely gown of rose, green and gray striped taffeta.

Harrie Chamberlin, USA, a student at Harvard Medical School, heads the ushers and among the guests are several from out of town—Mrs. Basil D'Emo, 3d, of Sidney, Australia, and New York, Patricia Platt of New York and Jane Gray Knowles, Louisville, Ky.

After a month's vacation at the Seigniory Club in Quebec, Jackie will spend the summer as a volunteer at the South End Music School. She graduates from Winsor School this June and is an accomplished violinist.

Dads in Limelight For Just One Day

Greater Boston will join the nation tomorrow in the observance of Father's Day, paying tribute to millions of young fathers now in service and the dads of millions of sons who have fought—and died—in this still unfinished struggle.

But if past observances are any criterion, the majority of fathers will pursue their normal course unmoved by the honor being accorded them.

There is still a job to be done to speed the day of complete victory. Never before in history have so many fathers worked and contributed to the cause of freedom.

More Stars to Aid Hub Bataan Show

With the inimitable Eddie Cantor of radio, stage and screen fame as master of ceremonies, other top-flight entertainers have volunteered for the super-special show in aid of servicemen's wives and motners, to be staged at Boston Garden Sunday evening, June 24.

This all-star presentation with a two-fold purpose—a salute to "Back to Bataan," epic RKO photoplay, and to raise funds for a downtown center for servicemen's wives and mothers—has added to its cast the following favorites in the entertainment world:

Tony Bruno and his famous Latin Quarter band, lending musical background to the show under the maestro's personal direction; Hollywood's favorite comedian, Johnny Howard; the glamorous Whitney Sisters, dance team: the female comedians of song, the Crosby Sisters, and the Dancing Mayfairettes — all from Club Mayfair.

Paddy Cliff and his thrilling voice; Chaz Chase in his funny antics, and the beautiful Don Arden Girls—all from the lavish Latin Quarter show. And the season's new sensation of gags and laughter, Broadway's celebrated Jackie Miles, appearing at the Bradford Roof.

And in tomorrow's Boston Sunday Advertiser will be announced a list of top movie stars who are making the trip east from Hollywood to give their services in the big Garden show, held on the eve of the "Back to Bataan" film's world premiere, June 25, at Boston's Keith Memorial Theater.

Already announced as participants with Eddie Cantor are his entire radio show, including Nora Martin and Bea Walker, song stylists; Fred Martel, vocalist, and Leonard Sues, one of the nation's greatest trumpet players; Benny Goodman, the "King of Swing," and his show from the RKO-Boston: Romo Vincent, rollicking comedian and star of the hit show, "Marinka"; and Ted Cole, Jean Merrill and the Gallagher Sisters, all singing notables from the Yankee Network.

Guests will include Gov. Tobin, Mayor Kerrigan, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippines commissioner to the U. S. and member of Gen. MacArthur's staff; 500 wearers of the Purple Heart, invited by Eddie Cantor; and officers and men from the New England area who were freed by Yank Rangers and Filipino guerrillas from the Jap prison camp at Cabanatuan, a graphic incident faithfully portrayed in the film "Back to Bataan."

The big Garden show, scheduled to start promptly at 8:15, is at popular prices, $1.20, $2.40 and $3.60. Tickets are on sale daily at Boston Garden from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.—but get down there soon if you wish the best seats.

UNCLE SUCKER AGAIN?

INSIDIOUS PROPAGANDA, some of it originating from the late Herr Goebbels' now dismantled lie factory, is confusing the tariff issue.

Instead of approaching the subject in a scientific and fact-finding manner, there is an emotional disposition to outlaw such historic protective devices in a hallelujah spirit of worldwide amelioration.

In the circumstances, sound instinct caused a majority of the Senate Finance Committee to strike out from the renewal of the reciprocal tariff law the provision permitting executive discretion to cut tariff rates 75 per cent instead of 50 per cent as heretofore.

The mania for destroying the historic foundations for superior American standards of living is based on soothistry and illusion.

The puerile premise is that, if all nations are permitted to compete in the internal market of the United States, strife and controversy will vanish from the international stage.

According to this naive concept, the instance of pugnacity, the ambitions of rulers in power politics states, cultural and ideological differences will be nullified and world peace will endure if only "wicked" American tariffs are eliminated.

The doctrine is indeed unsophisticated, and those who promise great results from such self-abnegating steps will be unable to deliver, unless they concurrently deal with the authentic causes of war.

YET THIS propaganda drive for both tariff reduction and ratification of the Bretton Woods understandings reflects the notion that economic policies of the United States were breeders of war.

There is no justification for this position in history or in logic.

To act on the false theory is to accept the implications of the poisonous Nazi propaganda machine.

When the Nazi war criminals were plotting to disturb the peace of the world, they falsely rationalized their position by talking of the need for "living space" and for access to raw materials.

The fallacious implication was that they were driven to war because of harsh economic conditions.

But such arguments were blue sky utterances intended to deceive suckers.

As a matter of fact, living standards in Germany, before the war, though lower than our own, were relatively high among all the nations of the world. They could have been much higher if the Nazi plotters had not been diverting so huge a proportion of the resources of the nation in manhours, tools and materials to preparation for war.

If economic need were the principal cause of war, then China and India would have been at the vanguard of the aggressors. But of course this was not the case.

WHILE the American people are eager to make their maximum contribution to a peaceful and prosperous world, it is essential that the record be clarified.

It is important for the clear vision of the coming generation to set forth the basic truth that the United States has long undertaken to be the good neighbor of other countries.

It has fought these two major World Wars for most unselfish reasons—in order to free peoples everywhere of the threat of aggression.

Congress should not lightly remove the props which bolster American living standards.

Certainly, if there is to be a trend toward Free Trade THERE IS AN OBLIGATION FOR OTHER COUNTRIES TO AGREE TO MAINTAIN WAGES, SOCIAL STANDARDS AND COSTS ON A LEVEL WITH OUR OWN.

Otherwise, war exhausted peoples everywhere will seek to recoup their lost fortunes AT THE EXPENSE OF 35,000,000 AMERICAN FAMILIES.

ASTONISHING STATEMENT: A Brooklyn ex says she is a brown-eyed honey blonde. She is five feet two inches in height, and weighing 115 pounds and is considered "very attractive." She adds: "Nevertheless, I am 30 years old and unmarried. I just can't seem to get a husband." This astonishing statement indicates the husband shortage situation is much more serious than most of us think. Things must be really tough when brown-eyed honey blondes and Olivia De Havilland don't have husbands.

ARGUMENT: A San Francisco police sergeant says if you put a three-pound live fish into a 50-pound tank of water it will not add to the scale weight of the tank of water. That is, despite the addition of the fish the tank of water will still weigh 50 pounds. A patrolman disputes the sergeant's claim. He says the total weight will be 53 pounds. They ask me to settle the dispute. There is only one way to settle an argument like that. I suggest the boys go down to fisherman's wharf and get a 50-pound tank of water and a three-pound fish and weigh the combination. There may be trickery in the way this question has been put by the sergeant. Or it may be that it is a problem in physics.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS. Q. What is a "chalk player?" A. That is a turf term for those who make a practice of betting on favorites. They are in accord with the man who said: "It may be that the race is not always to the swift nor the battle to the strong but that's the way to bet." Q. If you will tell me who wrote the author of the enclosed poem Nancy Gibbs will make you a special recording of your favorite song. A. The query has me stopped. I lose. What is Nancy's favorite song." I will make a special recording for her. However, I recite better than I sing. Maybe she would settle for a recording of "They're Hanging Danny Deever in the Morning." Anyway, here is the poem in which Miss Gibbs is allegedly interested:

Since you've gone away, dear,
A curious thing I find.
The world is like a little chair,
That God forgot to wind.

PANTS: Ever have your pants pressed while you wait? On such occasion did you ever think what would happen if the tailoring shop caught fire? Of the embarrassing moments you would have when you rushed into the street minus your trousers? People who press pants while a customer waits should furnish some substitute trousers for the client to wear in case of an emergency. Did you know some women have their slacks or pants pressed while they wait? I didn't until I read of a truck running into a tailoring shop in Los Angeles. Among those who rushed from the shop at the time was a woman minus her slacks. She had been having them pressed while she waited. Call your wife's attention to this unfortunate happening. Advise her if she has her slacks pressed while she waits to request the pants presser to furnish her with a substitute pair of pants or a barrel in case of emergency.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL. A Baltimorean says he has won five out of six daily doubles this year and that in 1941 he won 22 out of 27 daily doubles. But he fails to state what his system is. . . . Am asked who wrote "The Face on the Barroom Floor." The correct title of this poem is "The Face on the Floor." It was written by Hugh D'Arcy . . . A U. S. Marine states that in four days in San Diego, Cal., he received proposals of marriage from four different girls, none of whom he had ever met before.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By GEORGE DIXON

Copyright 1945, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON, June 16—This happened some time ago, but it has never been printed and I do not think it has lost any of its beauty.

A group of Canadian editors were taken on a junket to England. The purpose of the trip was to cement ties of Empire—you know, hands across the sea, blood is thicker than water, etc., etc.

In the distinguished gathering was Mr. Percy T. Cole of Toronto. They were put up at one of London's best hostelries and informed they could live on the fat of the land—within reason.

It seems, however, their conservative British hosts had set a budgetary limit on the amount provided nightly for drinks.

Well, Mr. Cole had several guests in the taproom that evening and kept ordering costly potables. Things were getting good when the waiter came over and said:

"I'm sorry, sir, but you have exhausted your drink budget for the evening!"

Mr. Cole gave him a haughty look.

"Bring another round, my good man!" he ordered. "I will pay the chits from here on myself."

The waiter brought the drinks and Mr. Cole signed the tab. He gave his right number, but the name he signed was "Sir John A. MacDonald."

The waiter was deeply impressed. He bowed from the waist and practically "Sir Johnned" Mr. Cole all over the place for the rest of the evening.

* * *

YOU DOUBTLESS KNOW, of course, that Sir John A. MacDonald was the organizer of the Dominion of Canada. He was born in 1815, was the Dominion's first prime minister and privy councillor, and departed this life, full of years and honors, in 1891.

Anyway, Mr. Cole and his pals had a big evening in the taproom and went on to other places. Some time in the early morning hours, however, the hotel manager called his room.

Mr. Cole was not there. But the other occupant of the room, Mr. Bert Wemp, was.

"I say," began the manager, apologetically, "there is something we do not quite understand. We have a number of chits here signed by Sir John A. MacDonald but we have no such party listed from this room. In fact we do not seem to have any Sir John A. MacDonald registered."

Mr. Wemp, one-time Mayor of Toronto, was half asleep. But he was suddenly jerked to wakefulness.

"Sir John A MacDonald?" he gasped. "Why he's dead!"

There was also a gasp from the manager. "Oh, I say," said that functionary, "I hope he's not still in the room!"

* * *

REP. ESTES KEFAUVER of Tennessee received a telegram from Rep. Henry M. Jackson of Washington that he was sending a gift. Kefauver waited in considerable anticipation and suspense. Finally the express company phoned that a package had arrived, but that $6.97 was due on it.

Grumbling a bit but hoping the gift would be worth it, Kefauver paid the $6.97. He opened the huge box and unwrapped layer after layer of paper. At last he came to the gift.

It was a very defunct sock-eye salmon!

* * *

THE ONLY WAY I can interpret this is that it is a sign of the times. Col. William Westlake, second in command of Army Public Relations, got into a taxi here recently piloted by a woman driver. The lady chauffeur turned out to be a very animated type, meaning gabby.

"Today," she said, "happens to be my 10th anniversary as a taxi driver."

"That is nice," murmured Col. Westlake. "I suppose you are celebrating the event quietly?"

"Quite informally," replied the lady. "Our set is giving me a champagne party!"

* * *

MR. GEORGE GODDARD, the food expert, was busy compiling statistics on estimated food supply the other day when Tass, the Soviet news agency, phoned.

The Tass representative said his agency would like to use some of Mr. Goddard's material.

"We will be sure, of course, to give you a credit line," said the Tass man.

Mr. Goddard said that was very decent of Tass, indeed.

A couple of hours later, however, he was walking down the street when he stopped dead and let out an ejaculation that startled passers-by considerably.

"It just came to me," he explained later, "Tass stuff appears only in Russia. And what good is a credit line to me in Russian?"

HOLLYWOOD, June 16— Who says lightning never strikes twice in the same place? Lauren Bacall was discovered by Mrs. Howard Hawks from a picture in a fashion magazine. Now the same happy accident has struck Frank Borzage, who believes he has found the perfect heroine for "Concerto" – and where do you think he found her? On page 79 of Life magazine.

The girl is Nancy Guild, a co-ed at University of Arizona and a lovely-looking girl. Frank, who has been nursing a headache for three months trying to find the right 17-year-old heroine for his first movie at Republic, took one look at Nancy's picture and said "That's it." As soon as she can get transportation she'll travel to Hollywood for a test.

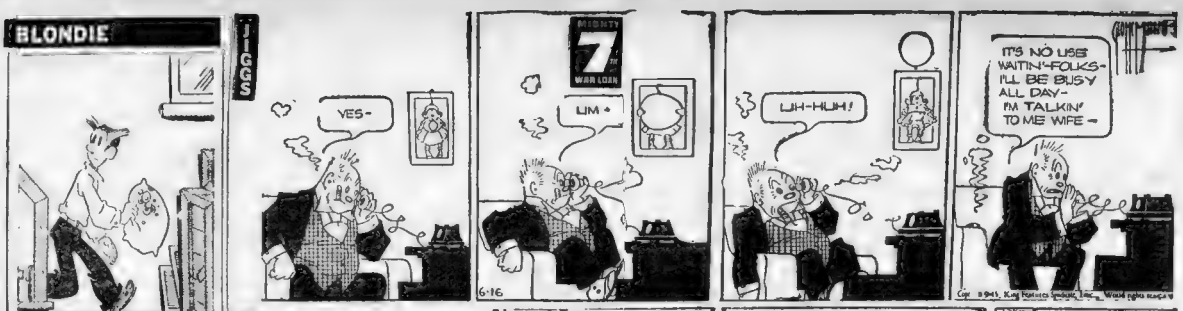
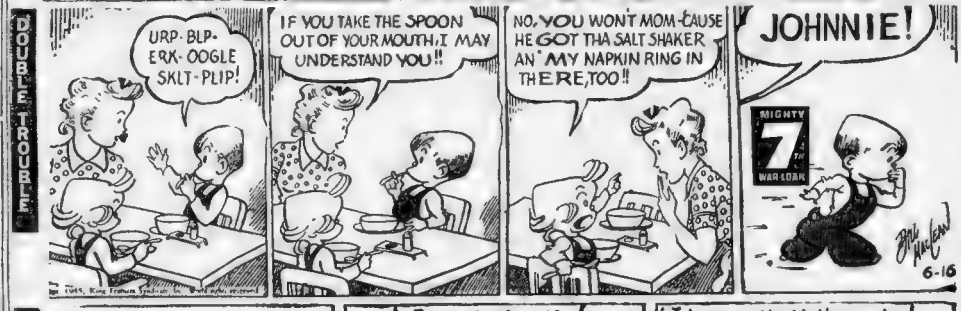
"I tried, but it wouldn't fit the other way!"





New Papal Secretary May Be No. American

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP) — The French Press Agency quoted a report from Vatican City that the New Papal Secretary of State probably would be a "high North American church dignitary."

The dispatch said such a choice would explain the delay in naming a successor to Luigi Cardinal Maglione, who died last August, since "the American church dignitary is unable to leave his present important office."

Fashions Parade At Suffolk

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

GOING TO THE RACES? Then you'll want to be as thrilling to look at as perhaps yourself experiencing the thrill of winning a bet! And, the two are possible . . . we discovered.

Opening day at Suffolk Downs not only brought out an unprecedented throng who paid added homage to the resumption of the sport of kings . . . but brought out a galaxy of ait a r-studded, sartorial eye-catchers. At the Paddock Club . . . where gay parties were very much the order of the day . . . many interestingly-garbed women were glimpsed . . . accenting a day at the races with costumes that did ample justice to Dame Fashion.

In the clubhouse and on the grounds below . . . Navy blue and gray were the predominating colors . . . although the brighter hues of a gay spectrum were also in evidence. Ever-loving black was in utter profusion all around . . . in basic dresses . . . in hats . . . and in feminine accessories.

SMART WHITE SUITS

Suits eclipsed other types of wearing apparel . . . with white touches on black . . . conventional prints . . . large splashy prints and gay two-pieces running closely behind. A day at ing closely behind.

Smart white suits . . . in linen-type weave . . . or in raw silk . . . in shantung . . . cute at a button . . . and smart as a whip, axiomatically speaking, made their appearance. Mary Sylvester were one of them . . . perked up with a rose-red silk blouse with large black polka dots that vied for honors with the sailor worn by the pekeys in their mounts.

Mrs. Francis P. Sears, North Shore socialite, a symphony in beige . . . wore a two-piece nifty . . . Double-breasted with accented round revers . . . perked up at the neckline with an ascot Persian print scarf that peeped out for good measure. Her hat . . . a two-story affair . . . high and round . . . was enveloped in matching beige tulle. She carried a brown bag and wore brown shoes.

Suffolk Downs President Allen J. Wilson's daughter-in-law, Mrs. George Wilson, took bows for the younger contingent . . . in her up-to-the-minute navy and white hounds'-tooth check taffeta . . . flared for color with Chinese red pumps and matching handbag. Her pert white sailor . . . with navy touches of bunched veiling topped off the attractive costume.

Miss Hope McCarthy of Medfield . . . sported an unusual white fabric straw hat . . . one of the larger-than-large affairs . . . which framed her pretty face with inch-and-a-half drooping fringe all around the hat's edge. A white over-the-shoulder handbag and the white hat were the only contrasting relief for her all-black dress and three-quarter length coat.

GREY AND NAVY blue three-piecer . . . colors which dominated the head-to-toe costume of Mrs. William H. Byrnes of Belmont . . . featured all of fashion's latest decrees. The grey suit braided down the front and along the pocket-edge . . . was accented with a navy blue bag and grey hat.

BIEGE symphony comprised the fashionable and chic double-breasted suit and two-story hat . . . which Mrs. Francis P. Sears, North Shore socialite, wore to eye-catching advantage at the races. The umbrella gave a Parisienne touch to the ensemble . . . perked up with a Persian print scarf which peeped out at the neckline.

FASHIONABLE black and white were fetchingly put into play . . . and were a safe bet for Miss Hope McCarthy . . . a pretty Medfield blonde . . . at Suffolk Downs.

HERE IS OUR OWN contribution to what constitutes high style for a day at the races . . . an exotic flower print . . . multi-colored against white in a sheer wool dress by the Tillets of Mexico . . . that will draw as many lookers as the Suffolk Downs steeds. The high V neck has a soft fold at either side . . . dirndl fullness and slit pockets for the skirt. Don't you love the cartwheel hat which sits so intriguingly on the top of the head? R.M.

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, Friday —On the other side of the argument for compulsory military training as a means of security, there is of course the fact that our rapidly trained armies have proved, in the end, a fair match for the armies of nations that constantly put their major effort on preparation for war.

Many of us, watching Germany in the last years, knew very well that at the time when we were putting our greatest effort into bringing back prosperity to our people, the Germans had full employment because the government was preparing for war.

We were devoting ourselves to the revival of business and farm prosperity, while Germany was making the same kind of expenditures that we have been making since the war started over there.

I remember a lady who returned from Europe and praised both the Italian and the German governments for the full employment, apparently never realizing that it could only be there if production for war was continuous.

* * *

IT IS QUITE evident that we want our economy to be based on peacetime prosperity, and we want that to be the same for nations all over the world.

I think it is well for us to consider whether we will actually be more secure if our young men have a full year of compulsory military service under the Army. I am not really afraid that our young people will become militaristic in the same sense that the young Germans became ardent and fanatical Nazis.

* * *

IT SEEMS to me that security rests on the best scientific research in every field that can be found anywhere in the world; on the most skilled people with the most original minds; on the healthiest people, mentally and physically, that we can produce, and on the best citizenry at home to back what we do both in the political field and the economic field and, if need be, in the military field.

Tasty Salad Dressings

By MARTHA LEE

FAIR AND WARMER DAYS ahead—and the summer salad once more comes into its own. Huge bowls of crisp, mixed greens are in order. Luscious combinations of fruits and berries, vegetables and cheeses—all demand a variation of dressing to add the final tasty touch.

Excellent are the prepared dressings available from the grocer. But who doesn't like to try her hand at homemade dressings now and then? Here's a completely simplified recipe for cooked mayonnaise. Quick and easy to make, this cooked mayonnaise has countless variations, some of which are described below.

COOKED MAYONNAISE

2 tsp. table fat ¼ tbsp. flour
½ cup water
½ tsp. dry mustard
Dash of paprika ½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. vinegar 1 egg
½ cup salad oil

Melt table fat. Add flour and water gradually. Mix until smooth. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and smooth. Now combine mustard, salt, paprika, egg, vinegar and salad oil in a bowl and beat until blended. Add the cooked mixture while it is still hot and beat with a rotary beater until smooth and creamy.

VARIATIONS

Thousand Island Dressing: To one batch of cooked mayonnaise, add ¼ cup chili sauce, 2 chopped hard-boiled eggs, 1 chopped dill pickle, ½ cup chopped celery, 2 tbsp. minced green pepper, 2 tbsp. minced onion.

"Snappy" Dressing: Add 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce, 4 tsp. chopped chives, 4 dashes tabasco sauce.

Fruit Salad Dressing: combine 2-3 cup cooked mayonnaise with 3 tbsp. fruit juice.

Cucumber Dressing: Combine ½ cup cooked mayonnaise, ¼ cup finely diced cucumber, 1 tbsp. chopped green pepper, 1 tsp. tarragon vinegar, ¼ tsp. salt, dash of cayenne pepper. This dressing is particularly good with fish.

A light salad accompanying a substantial meal requires a light, delicate dressing. A substantial dressing may accompany a hearty salad when it forms the main dish at a meal. But at a meal otherwise high in fat, simple dressings are preferred to those rich in oil or cream. Too much dressing may ruin a salad, so it is a wise hostess who seasons salads lightly with dressing, providing additional dressing as needed.

FRENCH DRESSING

1 small onion or 1 clove garlic, sliced
¼ cup vinegar or lemon juice
½ tsp. salt ⅛ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. paprika 1 tbsp. sugar
⅔ cup salad oil

Add onion to vinegar, let stand 20 minutes; strain. Combine salt, pepper, paprika and sugar in jar or large bottle, add vinegar and oil, cover closely and shake vigorously or make in bowl and beat with rotary egg beater. French dressing may be made in larger amounts and stored in the refrigerator. Always shake or beat again just before serving. Makes 1 cup dressing.

VARIATIONS

Chiffonade Dressing: Add 1 tbsp. each of chopped green peppers and pimentos, 1 tbsp. each of chopped olives and cucumber pickle and 1 hard-cooked egg, chopped.

Cream French Dressing: Add 2 tbsp. sweet or sour cream.

Curry French Dressing: Add ¼ tsp. curry powder with salt.

Fruit French Dressing: Add a dash each of nutmeg and marjoram and ¼ tsp. chervil to dry ingredients. Use lemon juice instead of vinegar.

Italian Dressing: Add 1 tbsp. tomato conserve or ketchup and 1 small green pepper, minced.

Joe Medwick Will Give Braves Batting Punch

By JACK CONWAY

THE DEAL BY which Outfielder Joe Medwick and Southpaw Pitcher Ewald Pyle come to the Braves from the Giants in return for Catcher Clyde Kluttz was additional proof that the new owners of the Tribe intend to get as many big name ball players as possible. Medwick, while 34 years of age, still packs sufficient batting punch to aid the Braves in their upward surge in the National League pennant race.

Medwick is a daring, colorful ballplayer. As a member of the Cardinals' famous "Gashouse Gang," he proved he was one of the most dangerous hitters in baseball and also a top fielder.

Joe Medwick

Medwick was later sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers for a price reported as being $100,000. He had the misfortune to get hit on the head shortly after joining the Dodgers. He returned to the game too quickly following his injury, and he was unable to do himself justice.

More recently as a member of the Giants, Medwick has shown plenty of flashes of his old batting power. He hits a long, hard ball and he should be able to lift the agate over many an outfield fence before the season closes. This is an age of high scoring in baseball, and a club to succeed must have batters who can get extra base hits. This has always been one of Medwick's specialties.

Bob Coleman will use Medwick in the No. 4 batting slot. The absence of a cleanup hitter has been one of the Tribe's weaknesses. It is expected that Medwick will fill this gap.

Ewald Pyle is considered a good southpaw pitcher. The Braves are desperately in need of flingers to help Mort Cooper who has shown brilliant form since coming to Boston.

The loss of Nate Andrews at a critical point in the flag race has been a hard blow to the Braves. Coleman is hopeful Nate will soon return to the lineup and remain with the club for the balance of the season.

Great Clutch Hitters

BALL CLUBS that have won pennants have usually had great clutch hitters. When the Yanks were at the peak of their glory, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig were two of the best clutch hitters the national pastime ever knew. They equalled the feats of Ty Cobb and of Sam Crawford and of Tris Speaker and Duffy Lewis.

Lewis never boasted of a batting average as high as those attained by Cobb and Speaker. He usually topped .300 and was at his best when the big chips were down. Walter Johnson, Ed Walsh and the other top pitchers of Duffy's period were unable to stop him. Bill Carrigan always liked to see Lewis going to bat when there were men on bases and a hit was needed to win a ball game.

As secretary of the Braves, Duffy will get a special kick out of seeing a clutch hitter like Joe Medwick in action.

General Manager John Quinn did not like to part with the services of catcher Clyde Kluttz, but it was necessary to do so to secure Medwick and Pyle. The youthful boss of the business office of the Braves has won the support of the fans by his brilliant deals. The acquisition of Mort Cooper and Joe Medwick within a period of a few weeks were moves in the right direction.

John Quinn has a thorough knowledge of baseball, and the daring to execute major deals. In the postwar period when the baseball market is opened wide again, the Braves will gather great strength.

BEFORE ASSUMING his duties as general manager of the Braves, John Quinn was in charge of the club's farm system. He has established outfits that were producing the needed replacements. The war halted the development of the Braves farm system, but it will be resumed after the war on a scale that will compare favorable with the setup of the Yanks, Cardinals and Red Sox.

The Cardinals and Yanks found out years ago that the best way to produce pennant winners is to have a sufficiently extensive farm system that will develop the necessary players. These two clubs have always had a player coming up when a veteran was fading. This is why they have always remained close to the top in the flag fights.

Joe Medwick Makes His Bow With Braves Today

By BILL GRIMES

One of the first weaknesses Mgr. Bob Coleman recognized in his Braves this spring was the absence of a clean up hitter. And, that is the reason why Joe Medwick, who, over the years, has been one of the game's best clean up batters, will be in left field this afternoon and bat No. 4 against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

General Manager John T. Quinn battled for two months to wean Joe Medwick from Manager Mel Ott. Finally, the Giants agreed to part with Medwick and Ewald Pyle, a veteran left hand pitcher, for Clyde Kluttz.

Chuck Workman

Early in the campaign Coleman was convinced that Joe Mack wasn't the type to succeed as a clean up hitter. Joe doesn't take over when he steps into the batter's box. While waiting for his "pitch," he takes too many strikes. Clean up hitters frequently hit pitches, which are out of the strike area and that is one reason why they are feared by opposing pitchers. Few batters have made more hits on outside, inside, low and high pitches than Joe Medwick, who, like all great clean up hitters, is a swinger with great wrist action.

For 31 games, Manager Coleman had no alternative but to hit Joe Mack No. 4. But, after the Braves lost the first game on Memorial Day in St. Louis, Coleman benched "Butch" Nieman and shook up his batting order. He assigned "Chuck" Workman to the outfield and reversed Tommy Holmes and Mack in the batting order.

Mack was hitting for only .238 when he was replaced by Holmes but he had batted in 21 runs. For three days, Holmes clicked in the No. 4 slot, making five hits, including two home runs, and adding five tallies to his R.B.I. But, then, Tommy went hitless for two days and Coleman realized that he could do the job.

So, "Butch" Nieman, who had clouted himself to fame during the early weeks of the season, was given a shot at the No. 4 spot for five games. But, he was a complete flop, making only two hits in 14 trips to the plate. And, moreover, he didn't drive in a single run.

Then Workman was assigned to the clean up position and he did a better job than any of his predecessors but with the acquisition of Medwick, "Chuck" will be given bench duty, along with Nieman and Tommy Holmes will be back in right field this afternoon.

PYLE DUE TO START

A low grade of relief pitching cost the Braves the first game of yesterday's advertised doubleheader. After Jim Tobin yielded a dozen hits in less than seven rounds, Ira utchinson took over and dropped his second game in three days, while trying to be a "fireman." The Dodgers bumped "Hutch" for four hits, a triple, a double and two singles in the 8th inning and picked up three runs, which gave them the decision. The nightcap was washed out in the 3d round.

Ewald Pyle will get his varsity letter this afternoon, if he puts in an appearance. The Braves pitching staff has hit an all time low, with Al Javery out with a lame wing, Nate Andrews, AWOL and the schedule calling for eight games in five days.

Johnny Lazor Goes On Hit Rampage

By HERB FINNEGAN

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 16—Everybody knows Ferriss can pitch, and everybody knows Johnson can hit, so, for a change, how about tossing a posy at Johnny Lazor, unsung member of the Red Sox cast who batted in tying and winning runs in Ferriss' dramatic 14 inning 6-5 victory over the Senators.

Lazor is a utility outfielder, who summers at Point Shirley, Winthrop, yet, as Yank Terry teed off with Mickey Haefner today in the third game of the series of five, he was the only .400 hitter in the Sox ranks.

Johnny Lazor

Lazor is playing this series only because Pete Fox is laid up with abscessed teeth. Nor was he sure of playing against the Senators today. A southpaw was hurling, and McBride was expected to get the call. But he can hit, and he can field, and his arm is surpassed in the Sox outfield only by that of Johnson.

Let's check back and see what Lazor has been doing.

May 28, batted for Ryba and doubled as Sox lost to Chicago 8-6.

May 30—Batted for Vic Johnson and singled home tying run as Sox beat Cleveland 7-6.

May 31—Fox out with sore arm. Lazor doubled twice as Ferriss beat Cleveland 6-2.

June 1—Doubled and singled as O'Neill beat Tigers 6-4.

June 2—Singled and clouted three run homer as Hausmann beat Tigers 5-1.

LAZOR ON RAMPAGE

The averages were published that day and they showed Lazor was batting .409. The following day he got one single in three trips as the Sox beat the Tigers 4-3 but despite his slugging he was yanked from the lineup in the nightcap and McBride substituted because Newhouser, a southpaw, was working (Lazor bats left handed). Fox was ready after that so Lazor resumed his bench warming. He did pinch hit twice, however, with these results:

June 6—Batted for Garbark and knocked in tying run as Barrett beat A's 3-2.

June 12—Batted for Garbark in 11th as Sox lost 7-5 to A's and hit into a double play but, as Del Baker said. "He really tied into the pitch." He almost cut Christopher's legs off with his drive.

Last night, in Ferriss' game, Lazor singled in the second, doubled Johnson to third in the fourth, doubled Johnson home with the tying run in the seventh, and singled Johnson home with winning run in the 14th.

In the nightcap, he singled his first time at bat, chased Ventura back to the fence for his third inning drive.

Who do the Sox keep a guy like that out of the lineup? The "we want Lazor" club, fast growing in numbers and volume would like to know the answer.

"My most satisfactory win," smiled Ferris as he nibbled at a brick of ice cream between games. Combed for three hits and a run in the first, five hits and four runs in the fifth, Ferriss settled down and blanked the Nats with three hits for the last nine frames . . . "Wish he'd pitch every day," said Johnson, who always hits for Ferriss. Johnson got three for him last night . . . The Sox surely scrap behind Ferriss. Imagine staging a five run rally to tie the score in the seventh . . . "I couldn't let them down after that," said Ferriss . . . Johnson's three run double was doubly sweet because it was made off Carrasquel, with whom Johnson had a fist fight two years ago . . . But Johnson, dead tired, couldn't hit niggeling with an oar. He fanned thrice as Niggeling accounted for 12 Sox by the strikeout route. And Shhh, so did "We want" Lazor . . . The second game ended 4 all at 1:02 a. m., called by curfew.

Dolph Camilli To Join Sox

WASHINGTON, June 16—Dolph Camilli, former great first baseman of the Brooklyn Dodgers who recently was dropped from his berth as playing manager of the Oakland club in the Coast League, has agreed to terms with the Red Sox.

Joe Cronin revealed this news today, and said that though he wasn't sure just how soon Dolph could join the Hose, that he probably would reach the club in a week or so.

Camilli is 38, but he still is a long hitter and will fill in at first, enabling Metkovich to move to the outfield and thus give Bob Johnson some needed relief. With Camilli to help out, the Sox will have more hitting insurance than they've had for a long time.

Devil Diver Top Favorite at Belmont

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP)—Greentree Stable's Devil Diver, winner of the Metropolitan Handicap last week, was a top-heavy favorite to win the $50,000-added Suburban Handicap at Belmont Park today. Four other horses, Great Rush, Rounders, Olympic Zenith and Stymie also were entered in the mile and one quarter race.

As Always Medford Cashes In On Breaks

By MIKE GILLOOLY

In baseball, a team just has to make the breaks to win championships. And that's just why Coach Art Tirrell's Medford High School outfit, turned back on five previous attempts, now rules the Eastern sector of the state as a result of its (2-0) victory in the finale of the Schoolboy Writers' Ass'n tournament at Fenway Park.

Medford was not better than an even choice at the start of the diamond carnival but, like the New York Yankees, everything fell just right for the Mustangs.

Medford had but one pitcher going into the series which was slated to be held over the course of five days. The team had lost Paul Whelan to the armed forces so that it looked as though the entire twirling load would fall on Joe DiBiase, winner of seven straight over the course of the campaign. Charlie Garrity, a southpaw, had only started two games. Paul Canty had just suffered his team's only loss of the season.

DiBiase came through in the opener against Rindge Tech.

Then, the rains came and the semi-final round had to be postponed a week. Coach Tirrell gambled on Garrity and the nine responded with a wild scoring spree for the junior so that he coasted to victory over Coyle High (11-2). That set the stage for DiBiase to take over in the final against Milton.

MEDFORD ALWAYS ALERT

It's history now that DiBiase let the Milton's down with two hits, both singles by Ed Ferrante, and that the rain halted the contest after eight innings. But even in winning, the Medfords had the breaks in scoring both runs. They forced the issue from the start to topple previously undefeated Everett Goodwin from the Milton mound.

Medford's first run was the result of a fielder's choice on a ball that was poorly played. Its clincher was set up on a Milton error, after two were out.

But that's just what wins ball games! Ask Medford with its 18-1 record!

SHAMON WINS H P HONOR

The kids at Hyde Park High School have picked their "Athlete of the Year" and the honors fell to the highly deserving Joe Shamon, nephew of Judge Elias F. Shamon of the Municipal bench . . . Joe was vice president of his class, captain in football and basketball . . . in football he played end and quarterback . . . In basketball for two seasons, he was among the top three scorers in the city ranks both years . . . Last season, he averaged 18 points in 15 games.

Shamon played the full season of varsity baseball . . . As a junior he was a shortstop with a .425 batting mark . . . This past campaign, he tried his hand at pitching, won two in a row, shifted to catching and third basing . . . Meanwhile he was powdering the ball for a nifty .392 . . . He's 6 foot and weighs 170 pounds . . . He'll probably head Boston College.

McBride in Right For Red Sox

WASHINGTON, June 16—Still groggy from their 27 innings of baseball last night, the Red Sox took batting and fielding practice today as they faced the Senators in the third game of the series.

Pitchers for today's game were Yank Terry and Mickey Haefner. Fred Walters was the Sox catcher, Garbark and Holm both being on the injured list.

In right field for the Sox, because a left hander was working against them, was Tom McBride. On the bench was Johnny "We Want" Lazor, batting standout in Ferries' 14 inning win over the Senators last night.

FIRST INNING

Myatt singled, scoring Ferrell, and when Culberson fumbled the ball, Haefner went to third and when Steiner let Culberson's throw get away from him, Haefner scored and Myatt went to third. Torres flied to McBride. Vaughn struck out. Kuhel flied to McBride. TWO RUNS.
